Excerpt: . something In him that makes him a master and causes others to be glad to serve. The real rule of men will always be a theocracy, composed of men raised up by the nature of things to command. 26. Out of this thought we may weave another section for our Creed: Success and conquest comes only from each man s individual efforts wisely, swiftly, incessantly exerted. Permanent power cannot be acquired by any artificial plan of levelling men. Only as you hue closely to Nature s plan of encouraging that which is best, can you reach supremacy. 27. Gerald Stanley Lee wrote a great book. It is called CROWDS--a Book for the Individual. I wish I might stop and write a book: INDIVIDUALS--A Book for the Crowd. 28. Lee, in his book, weaves a mind-gripping story of crowds--people in masses. He talks of their ambitions, their machines, their goals, their methods. He deals with where they are going; how they are going; what they are after; how they are trying to get it; and how they are trying to express themselves. But always as the crowd, the mass, understand. It is a sort of socialistic interweaving of men in bulk--the ebb and flow of the multitude as they surge along through life. 29. A crowd represents a levelling of men--a pulling down of the dominant--a lowering of leaders. Not that the masterful man has committed any crime against the laws of created beings--but...
