Elephant Publisher. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 230 pages. Dimensions: 10.0in. x 8.0in. x 0.5in. Sherry Heijkoops different kind of memoir, ELEPHANT, is an inspirational and entertaining read. ELEPHANT unfolds her life growing up in extreme poverty in a dirt shack in Malaysia after her dad womanized his way out of her family when she was two. Raised by a single mom with eight siblings - a family that consistently degraded Sherry for not having the physical traits of a Chinese beauty and in turn labeling her with the nickname Elephant. See Sherrys struggle out of abject poverty with determination, fearlessness and a fiery ambition to work around the world to selflessly elevate her family from destitution. With this unmatched drive for success, Sherry became a top closer and producer in Asia, Europe and America. Despite insurmountable obstacles, deep betrayals, and the burden of supporting her large family, she stayed focused on her goals, worked very hard to achieve consistent success, became a millionaire and retired young. Her biggest personal challenge came after retirement. Out of kindness and compassion, she adopted a homeless college student in Southern California as her son and she surprisingly felt a family love she never realized she didnt have. However the story doesnt end there and just when Sherry thinks her lifes challenges met its peak long before she unsuspectingly learns a valuable lesson. If you think youve been knocked down and cant get up, then read ELEPHANT. It is an extremely uplifting, inspiring, unique, entertaining and fascinating story!!!
